(4.1.4)News USC, Penn State tangle in front of 70,000 fans USC and Penn State face each other for the first time in Penn State's 2011 football season. Santiago Casilla AP Photo After five years playing his college ball at Southern California, Penn State linebacker James Laurinaitis gets to open his final home game of his college career against a rival. On Saturday, Penn State's Nittany Lions (6-2, 3-1) will take on the Trojans (6-2, 3-1) at University Park in the opener of a doubleheader featuring their Big Ten rivals. "We came together as a team and fought from the beginning to the end, I think that's what's best about this team," Laurinaitis said. "The past nine weeks or so, we've found out what we want to be, and now it's a matter of just going out there and showing that again." This was Penn State's first trip to Southern California since its last appearance in 2002. The last time the two teams faced each other was 2009, when USC defeated Penn State, 17-14. Penn State, which has been one of the hottest teams in the Big Ten, is coming off a victory over Wisconsin, while USC has lost two straight and is 1-1 against Big Ten teams. USC quarterback Matt
