Storing the result of a PUT REST web service call I've got a web service with a PUT method that updates a record in the database, and I need to call the service and store the result in a variable for later use in the code. It looks like a POST but it returns a 200 OK status code. As this data needs to be sent to a command-line program from the webservice the controller class is in (not sure if this is relevant but...) it's important that the operation is as asynchronous as possible as I may already have the state object ready in the Controller. I'm doing something like: [WebMethod(EnableSession = true)] public void UpdateUser(MyEntity state) { //... do stuff here... } And then in the calling code: var client = new RestClient(""); var request = new RestRequest(Method.PUT); request.RequestFormat = DataFormat.J
