The following are the links to download the maps for various models of Garmin GPS, as mentioned in the above table. You can access these files in your PC via a computer emulator such as Jester or in a smartphone emulator such as Garmin Mobile. Once the maps are downloaded, they are automatically installed in the GPS with the file name specified. The latest Garmin GPS models are also compatible with real-time auto navigation. GPS and Satnavs A Garmin product will normally come loaded with maps and will be ready to work the moment it's installed into the vehicle.

A device will let you know if it does not have the right software installed or if there are any necessary updates. If you are unsure of the model you have, refer to the manual which should be supplied by the manufacturer. Let your GPS locate you using satellite technology, triangulate and display the position of your vehicle and the recommended route to your destination. This is an extremely useful feature for those who drive with a satnav. You no longer have to ask where you are, just press a button on the device and it can do the rest, with a satnav for Android being the most responsive and reliable. 3G or 4G network connection will allow an even more accurate navigation to your chosen location. PC and mobile To load a new map onto your GPS, follow the below steps: Download the map file from your computer. Maps are usually provided in a.bin format; this means you can save them onto your computer using a dedicated file extraction tool such as DriveX or Total Commander. When the file is extracted, it can be placed directly into the device with the file name specified. Download the latest Garmin mapping program on the Internet. The program is usually updated daily with new maps and additions to the previously provided maps. The map files will be downloaded to the device or computer you are connected to. You will then be able to choose the region to display a map in, and then start the navigation. Maps can also be updated manually, either on your mobile device or laptop or on your desktop computer. What is a GPS? A Global Positioning System is a satellite navigation system that measures your position on earth. If you have a GPS device, you can use it to calculate your position, direction, speed, and distance from a previously set destination. Most vehicles come with a built-in GPS receiver, and you
